

UNIVERSITÉ
FRANÇAISE
D'ÉGYPTE

MASTERS OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

School of Social Sciences & Applied Languages

Overview

The Master of International relations delivers a master's degree recognized by the Supreme Council of Universities. With a duration of two years (120 ECTS -120 hours), it provides students with a deep understanding of the complex dynamics of the international environment. The program focuses on developing critical thinking skills, intercultural competencies, and analytical expertise to prepare students for successful careers in the global arena. To this end, master's students benefit from the possibility of completing part of their studies at one of our two academic partners, the University of Grenoble-Alpes (Sciences Po Grenoble), or the University of Paul Valéry (Université Montpellier 3).

French Partner

SCIENCES PO
Grenoble

UGA

Egyptian degree European ECTS

WHY STUDY MASTER INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS:

- Expert Faculty: Our experienced teachers, including visiting professors from renowned French universities, bring a wealth of knowledge and practical knowledge to the classroom.
- Global Perspective: The curriculum is designed to offer a holistic understanding of global issues, enabling students to analyze complex international phenomena from multiple perspectives.
- Cross-Cultural Exposure: The program offers opportunities for cultural exchange and collaboration with foreign students, providing a rich and diverse learning environment.
- Professional Development: Students have access to career services, networking events, and internships that help them build valuable connections and launch successful careers.

POSSIBLE CAREERS PATHS

The master's degree in International Relations opens doors to diverse and rewarding career paths in the international arena and in the globalized world. Graduates have a wide range of career opportunities available to them, including:

- Positions in regional and international intergovernmental organizations as well as non-governmental organizations.
- Roles in foreign affairs departments of government agencies and embassies.
- Opportunities in multinational companies engaged in international trade, finance, and development.
- Pursuing a career in scientific research, academia, think tanks, and policy analysis.
- Becoming consultants or advisors for businesses operating in the global market.

STUDY COURSES

YEAR 1 - SEMESTER 1

Theory of international relations.

History of International Relations.

The United Nations: genesis, evolution, & reform of the United Nations system.

Public international law.

Comparative political systems.

Geopolitics of the Middle East.

Method conference on international relations.

History of political thought.

YEAR 1 - SEMESTER 2

Comparative foreign policies.

Defense and Security policy.

Diplomatic and consular law.

International political economy.

International Criminal law.

Geopolitics of the European Union.

International Human Rights Law.

YEAR 2 - SEMESTER 1

Sociology of international organizations.

Foreign policies of the major players in the Middle East.

Policies of humanitarian action.

International negotiation.

Regional Issues.

Statistics of international organizations.

The emerging Powers in the international system

Africa in International Politics

YEAR 2 - SEMESTER 2

This semester is dedicated to writing and defending a thesis, professional orientation or research specialty.